I can identify a range of determiners.

LessonID: 250

Let's review determiners. They come before a noun or any words associated with a noun, such as adjectives (which together make up a noun phrase). Determiners help us know whether we're talking about specific nouns or more general nouns.

Circle all the determiners in the passages below. The number tells you how many there are to find.

6

"Every child must complete ten questions," the teacher told the children.

"This question is too hard," Ben protested. "Does it mean I will lose my lunchtime?"

5

As I directed my eyes up to the sky, I noticed three people were skydiving. "Those people are so brave!" I declared. "I also can't believe an aeroplane that small can fly so fast."

4

It was their turn on the computer, but the children knew they would only get five minutes each. "This computer has crashed! We should have an extra turn," complained Sally.

7

Paul loved his bike more than anything in the world. He'd had many bikes before, but this bike was special; the range of gears meant he could go faster than every other child in his class.
