

Name: _____

Date: _____

I can identify statements and commands in sentences.

LessonID: 251

Statements are used to tell the reader something that can be considered as true; it can't be argued or disagreed with.
Commands issue instructions; they tell someone to do something. They can sound quite bossy. For each sentence below, tick to state whether it's a statement or a command.

I expect it will be sunny at the weekend.

Statement Command

Check the weather forecast before you leave.

Statement Command

"Get changed ready for sports day," instructed the teacher.

Statement Command

Despite the rain, sports day started on time.

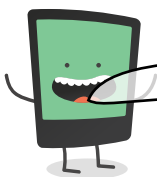

Statement Command

Call the fire brigade.

Statement Command

The kitchen is on fire.

Statement Command

Write a suitable command that might be said for each of the following statements. Use the examples above for help if necessary. Remember, to punctuate your speech correctly.

The class were being noisy.

.....
.....

Ben had won £1 million on the lottery.

.....
.....

It started to rain.

.....
.....