I can use hyphens to create compound adjectives.

LessonID: 315

We can use hyphens to link words to form a single compound adjective; this is a group of words that describe a noun. In the sentences below, the hyphens are missing. Circle the noun that is being described, then add the hyphens to create the compound adjective that describes this noun.

Snakes are cold blooded animals.

I want to go to the Portuguese speaking country of Brazil.

London is a densely populate city.

Every day Sally would dream of becoming a world famous singer.

Here are some words than can be joined to form compound adjectives. Think carefully about what the words mean when they're linked to form a compound adjective. Select three to use in your own sentences. Remember to add the hyphens to link the words.
